Retirement after 38 years with the Town

By WENDY SMERKA
Review Contributor

On December 22, 2011, Town Council and staff gave their final farewell to long-time Public Works employee, Larry Lecopoy, as he retired from his position with the Elk Point Public Works crew.

Larry was first presented with a congratulatory certificate by Mayor Parrish Tung on behalf of Town Council and staff for his 38 years of hard work and dedication.

In those 38 years of service with Public Works, Larry has seen many pieces of equipment "get run down, beat up, and sold for parts."

The Public Works crew tirelessly gathered several of these old parts to commemorate those 38 years. Presented to Larry by Superintendent of Public Works Jay Duffee were a chunk of the grader blade and a tooth from the backhoe, all that they could salvage after Larry's career.

The sweeper that Larry proudly drove through the streets of Elk Point year after year was unable to spare any recognizable parts, however, Jay was able to scrounge up its final depreciated value – a prize claim of $10.

Town Council and staff extended their utmost congratulations to Larry on his retirement, and their sincerest apologies to his wife, Gloria, for any havoc she may deal with now that he will be home on a full-time basis. They wished the valued employee well, and thanked him for his service with the Town of Elk Point.

Town sets industrial lot price

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point town council held their final meeting of 2011 last Thursday, setting in place plans for the coming year that included determining the price of their serviced industrial lots. The lots will go for $90,000.

Council also agreed to a three per cent, across the board salary increase for their employees.

They also gave the go-ahead to being part of the Alberta Icon Passport again in 2012, at the cost of $750. The tourism promotion, developed and produced by Woodlands County, includes 24 communities across the province that have built unique icons to attract visitors, including our own Peter Fidler statue. Tourists visiting these communities can have their passports stamped at designated locations, and may enter filled passports in a year-end draw for cash prizes. Town manager Myron Goyan said Elk Point "got a lot of mileage" out of the promotion last year, in terms of increased visitation and extended visitor stays.

Youth and recreation figured prominently in the agenda, with council giving their support, to the tune of $50, to the Kalyna Idol competition, acknowledging that Elk Point and area youths are among those who compete in the annual event.

Regulations similar to those for use of the town-owned barbecue were put in place for the popcorn machine, so that it can be utilized for more occasions.

The F. G. Miller grad class was given the go-ahead to run the concession for future movie nights, and to receive the revenue they generate through working at those events.

After several days of slaving over hot stoves and cutting boards, F. G. Miller's 2012 grad class was all set to serve the tasty pre-Christmas meal they prepared for their fellow students, staff and invited guests at the school's Dec. 23 brunch.

Christmas tradition continues at FGM

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

F. G. Miller High School carried on the longstanding tradition of starting the Christmas break with the annual Christmas Brunch on Dec. 23.

Principal Colin Bjorkman welcomed the special guests in attendance and thanked vice-principal Cheri Lindquist and her team of Grade 12 students, who "worked hard the past few days" preparing the meal, the school staff members who roasted turkeys and the home economics classes who prepared the desserts for the occasion.

Sherry Bower Gagne and Denise Bjorkman called forward Guy Genereux, acting coordinator of Elk Point and Area Victim Services, and presented him with a sizeable pile of stuffed animals donated by the Crusaders, the Elk Point Elementary School Tigers and the Practitioners of Underground Philanthropy (PUPs).

Genereux thanked the students for their generosity, noting that the animals "provide comfort in difficult times" when they are given to children involved in tragic or traumatic incidents.

Coun. Dwight Dach brought greetings from the County of St. Paul No. 19, asking Santa Claus to "be extra nice to the Grade 12s" this year.

Cst. Sarah Spaans of Elk Point RCMP urged everyone to have a safe holiday, noting, "everybody knows the smart decisions."

Mayor Parrish Tung was pleased to be part of this special occasion and looked forward to another, saying, "As educators and students, we work not for the weekend, but for the summer. Just six months to go!"

Superintendent of Schools Glen Brodziak brought greetings from the school board and trustee Darrell Youngmans, wishing one and all a season filled with "love, warmth and laughter."

Bernadette Godelin of the Elk Point Elks Lodge asked the blessing before everyone lined up to pile their plates with turkey and all the trimmings.

Following the meal, Brodziak returned to the podium to present Jared Loughran with a plaque for the top Grade 9 marks for the 2010-2011 school year. He then called forward Sherry Bower Gagne, Sara Hochachka, Elvis Sibal, Shane Larmand, Diana Richer, Donna Krider and Crystal Boorse to accept the Doug Yeo Youth in Action Award, presented for a second time to Elk Point's PUP group for their efforts in the school and community.

The brunch also included entertainment, with Larmand leading his music students in a number of Christmas favourites.

EDITORIAL

Three for three!

Believe it or not, the Elk Point Review went three for three on the 2011 New Year's predictions.

Last January, we predicted that town council would make the best decision for all concerned regarding our water supply, that the chamber of commerce would get the Visitor Information EcoCentre's elevator operating and the mini EcoCentre raffled off, and the Elks and Royal Purple would enjoy their freedom from decades of Thursday night bingos.

Council has done all they can to this point, toward being linked to a 24/7 water supply pipeline. The EcoCentre elevator does indeed operate, and a lucky winner took home the mini EcoCentre after the Canada Day draw. The Elks and Royal Purple are coping well with their freedom from bingo duty in their own hall, the Royal Purple replacing their concession income with much larger revenue from working bingos in St. Paul.

So, for 2012, what do we dare predict?

Town council will make sure there are both industrial and residential lots ready to accommodate growth in the community. The chamber of commerce, under new leadership, will take a hard look at their goals and their projects, and make significant changes. Volunteerism will continue to sustain the community, with (dare we hope?) new leadership coming forward to take over the reins of some organizations, while other leaders will continue to search in vain for replacements.

Why not make volunteering one of your 2012 resolutions?

GUEST COLUMN

Goal setting

Goal setting for some of you may have occurred on New Year's Eve. With it only being a couple of days later, you are probably still able to keep that goal or be working on it. Good for you! Actually making goals is good in that it helps us to formally create the vision of something we want to achieve.

You can find all kinds of goals in all kinds of organizations as well as in individual personal goals. Some goals are short-term and specific (starting next month, we will increase production by two units per employee per hour), and others are long-term and nebulous (within the next five years, we will become a learning organization). Some goals are easily understood by employees (line employees will have no more than 20 rejects per month), but others can be difficult to fathom and subject to much interpretation (all employees need to show entrepreneurial spirit). Still others can be accomplished relatively easily (reception staff will always answer the phone by the third ring), but others are virtually impossible to attain (all employees will master the five languages that our customers speak before the end of the fiscal year).

How do you know what kind of goals to set? The whole point of setting goals, after all, is to achieve them. The best goals are smart goals – well, actually SMART goals is more like it. SMART is a handy acronym for the five characteristics of well-designed goals.

- Specific: Goals should be straightforward and emphasize what you want to happen. Specifics help us to focus our efforts and clearly define what we are going to do. Use action words such as direct, organize, coordinate, lead, develop, plan, build etc.

- Measurable: If you can't measure it, you can't manage it. Choose a goal with measurable progress, so you can see the change occur. How will you see when your reach your deanna

EASTHOPE
from the FCSS desk

goal? Be specific! "I want to read three chapter books of 100 pages on my own before my birthday" shows the specific target to be measured. "I want to be a good reader" is not as measurable.

- Attainable: When you identify goals that are most important to you, you begin to figure out ways you can make them come true. You develop that attitudes, abilities, skills, and financial capacity to reach them. Goals you set which are too far out of your reach, you probably won't commit to doing. Although you may start with the best of intentions, the knowledge that it's too much for you means your subconscious will keep reminding you of this fact and will stop you from even giving it your best.

- Realistic: This is not a synonym for "easy." Realistic, in this case, means "do-able." The goal needs to be realistic for you and where you are at the moment. A goal of never again eating sweets, cakes, crisps and chocolate may not be realistic for someone who really enjoys these foods. For instance, it may be more realistic to set a goal of eating a piece of fruit each day instead of one sweet item.

- Timely: Set a timeframe for the goal: for next week, in three months, by fifth grade. Putting an end point on your goal gives you a clear target to work towards. If you don't set a time, the commitment is too vague. It tends not to happen because you feel you can start at any time. Time must be measurable, attainable and realistic.

By setting SMART goals you have answered the questions: WHAT are you going to do?;

WHY is this important to do at this time? WHAT do you want to ultimately accomplish?; and HOW are you going to do it? Therefore you will have looked at each goal and evaluated it and made any changes necessary to ensure it met the criteria for a SMART goal setting.

Since we are talking about goal setting, there seems to be something forgotten about measurement. An Irish Blessing asks and answers this question. "How does one measure time? No, not in days, months or years. It is measured by the most precious of all things ... LOVE. Without which all beings and things whether brave and or beautiful would perish." Therefore one goal for 2012 could be that we will show love in our actions toward each other each day.

Elk Point RCMP investigate two assaults

By Cst. SARAH G. SPAANS

Elk Point RCMP Detachment

On Dec. 26, Elk Point RCMP received a phone call from an adult female who stated that her adult male common-law spouse had assaulted her. The female did sustain some injuries and was treated in hospital. The male now faces several charges in relation to this incident.

Assault with weapon

On Dec. 22, Elk Point RCMP received a phone call stating that a male was suffering from a possible stab wound. The male was located a short time later and transported to hospital where he received treatment for the injuries. Investigation revealed that an argument with another male happened shortly before the victim was injured. The incident remains under investigation.

Impaired operation of a motor vehicle

On Dec. 15, Elk Point RCMP were conducting patrols of area roadways when a truck was observed to be driving in an erratic manner. A vehicle stop was conducted and the adult male driver was found to exhibiting signs of impairment. The driver was arrested and provided breath samples to police which indicated that he was above the legal limit of alcohol in the blood to be operating a motor vehicle. That male now faces several charges and will appear in court at a later date.

On Dec. 17, Elk Point RCMP were conducting patrols of area roadways when a vehicle stop was initiated with the driver when the license plate was noted to be expired. Upon further investigation, the adult male driver was also found to be exhibiting several signs of intoxication. The driver was arrested and provided breath samples which indicated that the driver was over the legal limit of alcohol in the blood allowed while operating a motor vehicle. The investigation also revealed that the driver was in possession of illegal street drugs. The driver now faces a future court date.

False alarms

During a week in mid-December, Elk Point RCMP received several calls for service when installed alarm systems in various houses and businesses were activated. During their response, the RCMP determined that no break-and-enter had occurred and that the alarms had been activated by employees on site or residents of the houses.

Theft under $5,000

On Nov. 21, Elk Point RCMP received a report of the theft of tools from a construction site in the town limits of Elk Point. The complainant advised that several different tools were taken from a locked shed on the work site. The tools have several identifying marks on them, which identifies the rightful owner. Anyone with information regarding a theft of tools from worksite in Elk Point, please contact Cst. Sarah Spaans at the Elk Point RCMP Detachment.

Break-and enter

On Nov. 29, Elk Point RCMP received a call from an Elk Point resident who wished to report a break-and-enter to their apartment. The person(s) responsible gained access to a basement suite after breaking a window and entering the apartment. Several items were taken at that time.
